THE DATA

5,675

Households Moving In From a Single County (2024)

Salt Lake County sent 5,675 households to the Provo-Orem-Lehi market in 2023–24, the highest of any U.S. county.

This inflow is more than seven times larger than the second-largest source, Davis County, UT. The sheer volume of migration from Salt Lake County signals a deepening regional integration between Utah's two largest metros. It reflects not just affordability pressures in Salt Lake City, but also a growing preference for the Provo-Orem-Lehi corridor's expanding job base and urban amenities.

Migration is reshaping regional dynamics

This movement is not driven by remote work alone. It is fueled by the availability of new housing, strong local employment, and a growing sense of place—factors that are being amplified by infrastructure projects like the Vesper Amphitheater and expanding tech corridors.

The market is becoming a self-sustaining magnet

The data implies that Provo-Orem-Lehi is becoming a new center of gravity for Utah's population. As more households move in, they bring demand for services, schools, and retail—further reinforcing the market's appeal and creating a virtuous cycle of growth.
