

40 States Joined the GENEROUS Program

But not all will get the same leverage.

THE DATA

40

States Participating

As of September 18, 2026, 40 states and Puerto Rico had signed agreements to participate in the GENEROUS Medicaid drug discount program.

This figure represents a strategic threshold: while all 50 states and D.C. are formally committed, only 40 have finalized agreements. The remaining 10 are still in application, suggesting a critical bottleneck in implementation. This gap reveals that political will alone does not guarantee execution — bureaucratic alignment and state-level fiscal planning are decisive.

01

Federal Programs Drive State Action

This is not a passive rollout; it's a high-leverage policy design where participation is tied to measurable outcomes, not just compliance.

02

The 10-States Gap Is the Real Story

The real risk is not non-participation — it's uneven implementation, which could create disparities in drug access across states, undermining the program's equity goals.
