the one-year change in the district's accountability score (2025-26)

Killeen ISD posted the highest improvement in the Killeen-Temple MSA for the 2025-26 school year.

This 5-point jump is not just a statistical blip—it reflects a measurable turnaround in academic performance, teacher retention, and administrative accountability. In a market where Fort Cavazos and the Baylor Scott & White medical corridor anchor employment, this educational uplift directly supports long-term housing demand. Families seeking stability in high-performing schools are now aligning with the region's economic drivers.

Education Drives Demand, Not Just Quality

This isn't a lagging indicator. It's a leading one.

02

Military Families Are the Real Estate Catalyst

This shift suggests that future real estate value will be less tied to proximity to base gates and more tied to proximity to high-growth school districts. The data implies that school performance is now a core determinant of long-term appreciation.
