

Highest Household Size in Alabama — ALEX Intelligence 2026

Meridianville Leads Alabama in Household Size

2.8 people per home — highest in the state, per ALEX Intelligence 2026

THE DATA

2.8

Average Household Size (2024)

Meridianville, Alabama, holds the highest average household size in the state, according to the latest ALEX Intelligence data.

This figure reflects a deeper trend: Meridianville is not just a bedroom community, but a living hub where families, multi-generational units, and extended households are choosing to settle. The number suggests strong demand for larger homes, multi-bedroom layouts, and community-oriented infrastructure. With 2.8 people per household, Meridianville is outpacing even traditional family-centric suburbs in the region.

A large rocket, with the word "DALTON" visible on its side, is being transported by a massive crawler-transporter through a large industrial building. The scene is overlaid with a semi-transparent red filter. In the background, several yellow school buses are parked on a dirt lot, and a few people are standing around the base of the rocket. The overall image conveys a sense of scale and industrial power.

Size Matters: Families Are the Real Growth Engine

For investors and agents, this means that homes with four or more bedrooms, fenced yards, and proximity to schools are not just desirable—they are essential to capturing the full value of the market's underlying momentum.

Density ≠ Overcrowding — It's a Strategic Advantage

For policymakers and developers, this is a blueprint: the most resilient real estate markets are not built on transient populations, but on communities that grow organically through shared values and infrastructure.
