THE DATA

4.0%

county unemployment rate (August 2026)

Williamson County's unemployment rate is 4.0%, among the lowest in the nation for large counties.

This figure places Williamson County in the top tier of economic resilience among the 60 most populous U.S. counties. The ranking reflects a labor market that remains tight despite national headwinds, suggesting sustained hiring momentum in tech, logistics, and professional services. The data, drawn from the BLS Local Area Unemployment Statistics, indicates that demand for skilled workers continues to outpace supply in the region.

01

Low Unemployment, High Demand

This is not a market where jobs are scarce — it's one where competition for talent is intense, and employers must innovate to retain skilled workers in a high-demand environment.

02

Unemployment as a Proxy for Stability

For investors and residents, this means that economic momentum is not temporary. The region's ability to maintain a 4.0% unemployment rate while growing rapidly points to a durable, high-functioning economy — one where demand for both housing and labor is structurally robust.
